Gone Glamping

Roughing it gets regal.

BY HAYLEY DULIN

Ready to spend a few nights sleeping under the stars, surrounded by towering mountain ranges and conifer forests, all the while enjoying five-star accommodations? The Resort at Paws Up offers the ultimate glamping (glamorous camping) experience.

Located in the little town of Greenough, Montana, the resort ranch is nestled on 37,000 acres of pristine wilderness. Paws Up provides an unparalleled experience of communing with nature in luxe accommodations. The spacious, safari-style tents feature rustic furnishings, art-adorned walls, heated wood floors, the finest linens, plush beds and an en-suite bathroom. The perquisites don't stop there.

A private camping butler is at your beck and call, and a personal chef is on hand, preparing savory gourmet creations like French toast with huckleberries picked from the slopes of the surrounding mountains.

What makes this different than any high-end luxury hotel? It's really about the experience you won't find at any hotel. There is an unfiltered connection having a full immersion experience with the natural beauty amidst the incredible landscape. Sit back, relax and find out why Lewis and Clark described Montana as "scenes of visionary enchantment."
