GLITTERATI ON THE GO BY KELLY CARTER

the Cannes International Film Festival—12 days of red carpet fashion, yacht-hopping, champagne sipping at luxurious hotels along the famous La Croisette Boulevard plus late-night parties—can take its toll on the most sociable Hollywood stars. But Twilight star Kellan Lutz, in Cannes to promote The Expendables 3, and actress Rosario Dawson, promoting her new film The Captive, found a way to recharge when they were whisked, separately, by private helicopter to the Provençal countryside for an exclusive getaway at Terre Blanche Hotel Spa Golf Resort in Tourrettes, France. Dawson and a couple of girlfriends dined al fresco and relaxed in the stunning spa, while Lutz and his friends chilled poolside and later feasted on a six-course gastronomic dinner at Le Faventia.

HOT HOTELIERS Longtime vegan actor Woody Harrelson, who can be seen in The Hunger Games: Mockingjay Part 1 later this year, is health conscious when it comes to hotels also. Earlier this year he bought 50 percent of The Inn at the Black

Olive. Baltimore's premiere boutique organic hotel and where the actor spent seven weeks filming the HBO hit movie Game Change. Also new to the list of celeb hoteliers is British tennis ace

Andy Murray, who bought Cromlix, an elegant

Victorian Perthshire mansion close to his hometown of Dunblane, turning it into a lavish 15-bedroom, five-star destination. "I'm pleased to be able to give something back to the community I grew up in," says the former US Open, Wimbledon, and

The trio took a class at The Culinary Institute of America and afterward Barrymore wrote "I learned to make to make ravioli from scratch! With ricotta and herbs with a brown butter sage sauce!" on her Instagram account.

Born amidst the cattle and pines of a working Montana ranch, The Resort at Paws Up has grown into one of purest distillations of luxury in the American West, combining 28 estates, 30 intimate glamping tents, and do-anything service into a one-of-a-kind experiential travel experience.

It all begins at resort's central hub, where fine dining at Pomp, designer shopping at the gift shop, and activities at the Wilderness Outpost—including fly-fishing, sporting clays, cattle drives, hiking, ATV tours, and more—meet in a perfect collision of opulence and adventure beneath the snowcapped gaze of the famed Glacier National Park to the north. The rustically appointed Wilderness Estates, as well as the tented spa pavilions, lie nearby, at the edge of the 37,000-acre ranch's rolling meadows, but if you're truly looking to get away from it all, the brand new Cliffside Camp should be your final destination. It is there, a short drive from the main Paws Up paddock on a tranquil bend overlooking the Blackfoot River, that the standalone copper tub-adorned Eagle Cliff Tent, in concert with special events like the guest-favorite Chuck Wagon dinners, reinforces the resort's belief that a step off the beaten path needn't take you far from the lap of luxury.

PHOENIX RISING

Like the mythical phoenix, the iconic Great House on Sir Richard Branson's Necker Island, BVI, destroyed by fire August 2011, has risen from the ashes, painstakingly restored to the tune of $17 million. Following the same layout, the new Great House has doubled to 22,000 square feet with a new roof terrace containing a private dining alcove and four-person Jacuzzi. There is also the new addition of a 700-foot-long zip line that zooms from the Great House above Turtle Beach.

Branson wanted an identical Great House, which was a place of many family memories. California-based designer June Scott has succeeded by decking out the space with quintessential Balinese furniture and creating the same bar, one of Sir Richard's favorite hangouts. Soaring skylights keep the space splashed with light and at night, three large chandeliers with tiny bulbs inside genuine South African ostrich eggs illuminate the room.

The Great Room is dotted with multiple seating areas, a jungle garden with resident turtles, piano, pool table, and dining room table seating 40. In addition, there are eight bedrooms with private balconies and en-suites, a bunkroom for eight children, and a gargantuan master suite with a freestanding outdoor bath and two-person Jacuzzi. And, in keeping with the unique Virgin culture, the bath amenities include condoms ($62,000 a night for Great House).
