Western Spirit, Timeless Memories

The American West was built on a spirit of resilience, and boundless possibility—and that legacy lives on at Paws Up. Here on this working cattle and bison ranch, the call of the land is unmistakable, urging you to step beyond the familiar, embrace new challenges, and awaken your sense of adventure.

Feel the thunder of hooves beneath you and experience the quiet moments that connect you to something greater.

Living Legacy of a Storied Past

Long before it became a luxury dude ranch, the land on which Paws Up resides was part of Captain Meriwether Lewis' journey home. In 1806, Lewis climbed Lookout Rock, searching for the best route back from the Pacific. In 1882, homesteader Henry Martin staked a gold mining claim on Martin Pasture, setting the stage for the ranching legacy that would follow.

Benjamin and Ollie Morris built the Morris Ranch House at the turn of the century, solidifying the land's future in cattle ranching. By 1915, Paul Greenough expanded the property into Sunset Valley Ranch, where he raised sheep branded with a distinctive green "O." Over the decades, the ranch changed hands several times. Beginning in 1965, Land and Jon Lindbergh, sons of aviator Charles Lindbergh, operated the Lindbergh Cattle Company for over 20 years.

In 1997, Dave and Nadine Lipson purchased the ranch, renaming it Paws Up after the enthusiastic greeting of their dogs. They transformed private ranching into luxury hospitality, opening Paws Up Montana (originally called The Resort at Paws Up) in 2005. Today, guests experience a blend of authentic ranch life, wilderness adventure, and wellness offerings set against the breathtaking backdrop of Montana's legendary landscape.

Accolades

"Wow, simply wow. This place is truly incredible, making for an unforgettable vacation. My family and I indulged in a wide array of activities, including ropes, shooting, UTV rides, fly fishing, biking, and horseback riding, all of which added immense joy to our trip. The accommodations were superb, but what truly distinguishes this place is its exceptional staff members." — CARLOS W.

"Just when we thought things could not get any better...the team at Paws Up out-did themselves. After our first visit last year (which was unforgettable) we only hoped to match the memories that were made. We enjoyed warm beverages perched high above the legendary Blackfoot River while watching the snow gently fall... Our youngest took more than 20 photos of the gingerbread display, which was the most impressive I have ever seen. In summary, just when we thought our last visit could not be outdone, the outstanding team at Paws Up and their unparalleled dedication to customer service, provided our family with the best vacation ever!" — CARRIE W.

"Paws Up, you made every dream we had of a Montana vacation come true. We dreamed of such a memorable vacation but we didn't expect this much care and warmth from the people who work there." — JIM C.

"What a world-class group of people! They made our family feel like the center of the universe. Maybe the center of the universe is Greenough, MT! Great rooms, the food is otherworldly, and you get a Lexus to drive the whole time. The best resort in America, and in the conversation for the world!" — SARA K.

"Glamping at its best. This Montana resort caters to every age group. The entire staff caters to your every need and the food is absolutely amazing! The activities range from very adventurous to easygoing. Our tent was exactly like the website showed with a very luxurious bathroom that included heated floors & towel racks. I would recommend this resort to anyone who loves an all inclusive, ranch style vacation. The landscape here was amazing!" — SHERRY S.
